

Dear all,

Join other educators and ELT professionals from around Bishkek on April 4, 2019 at the National Library named after A. Osmonov, for Oxford Day to exchange ideas, resources, and the best practices in ELT education.

There is a lot of talk about critical thinking, but what does it mean to an EFL teacher? In this session, we aim to clarify this, exploring the types of questions that help develop our learners' critical thinking skills. Welcome to Oxford Day with our keynote speaker Paul Woodall, who is an expert in critical thinking!

You will have an opportunity to experience critical thinking tasks and reflect on benefits by having face-to-face conversations with people from other universities. You will leave with theoretical insights, shared practical knowledge, and concrete output to work with back at university.

Kindly let us have your response by 29 so March that we could make further arrangements. We are looking forward to receiving a confirmation from you. We may also be contacted by phone:

+996 773 66 03 12

+996 558 16 59 98

Thursday, 4 April 2019

Time: 13:30 – 17:00

Venue: National Library named after A. Osmonov, 208 Abdrahmanov str.

Agenda	Thursday, April 4	Trainer
13:30-14:00	Registration for teachers
14:00-15:00	Session 1 Engaging, updated content with the new CPT	Paul Woodfall
15:00-15:30	Coffee Break/ Book display
15:30-16:30	Session 2 Applying Critical Thinking to Reading and Vocabulary	Paul Woodfall
16:30 -17:00	Certificate awards	